

Single-board silicon diode detector modules

These modules comprise the entire detection module for detecting particular radiation, including the silicon diode and amplification circuitry.

These modules are designed for incorporation into larger instruments, such as moderating survey meters for neutron dosimetry and bespoke instruments for the characterization of particle accelerators.